LOOKING FOR STUDENT BOARD MEMBER

The Southwest Fire Science Consortium has an opening for a student board member position on our executive board. As a board member, you will join a diverse group of leaders in fire and natural resource research and management across the Southwest.

Eligibility: Applicants must be an upper-level (junior or senior) undergraduate or graduate student at an academic institution in our region (see map below).

Commitments: Board members must attend monthly board meetings (3rd Wednesdays at 10 AM AZ time), attend yearly board retreat, participate in subcommittee work, participate in SWFSC events. Terms begin in October and last 1-2 years as applicable. Note: we are flexible and understanding of student schedules, but you must be able to attend board meetings.

Benefits: Network with leaders in your field; join in conversations at the leading edge of wildfire science and management; help support innovative actions to reduce wildfire risk, foster healthy lands, and support communities; receive travel funding to SWFSC events.

Interested? Send your resume and a brief (<350 words) statement of interest (including your institution and academic advisor's name and contact) to Molly.Mccormick@nau.edu
